Franklin County Fair Opens Monday Night; Program Is Complete

Fireworks and thrilling vaudeville tops the program on opening night Monday at Greenfield. With a record advance sale of tickets new attendance records for the annual county fair will be established.

The cattle barns will be taxed to capacity with a fine showing of the best breeds in this section. All space has been taken for the displays of fruits and vegetables, canned products and homecraft exhibits. The midway has been augmented and will contain many new thrill features.

Seven fast harness races will provide real contests for the followers of the sport of kings. The track is in splendid condition and it is expected that local records will be established. Additional expenditures have been made for the free vaudeville attractions, the horse and steer drawing contests and the horse shoe pitching tournament. The poultry show and the 4-H exhibits will be outstanding.

The opening feature of the fair will be staged at seven o'clock Monday evening when a special concert by the Greenfield Military band will open a vaudeville program of six mammoth acts. The Atonos, unsurpassed and unexcelled performers who actually toy with death on gigantic rings suspended ninety feet in the air. Supporting this feature attraction will be seen the Three Cards, a burlesque acrobatic laugh provoking, sharp shooting champions displaying thrilling rival shots that are new and different; Malin and Thomas in marvelous feats of strength; The Devils of Destiny and the most unusual animal act ever seen at the fair, the Aristocratic Goats. Concluding the evening's program will be an augmented display of fireworks which will give the most spectacular display of pyrotechnics ever presented by the fair.

The program for Tuesday will include four racing events, log chopping contest, drawing contests for cattle and judging of live stock and other exhibits. The entertainment program will be repeated identically the same as on Monday evening, including the huge fireworks display.

Wednesday has been designated as junior day and the program includes a county-wide interscholastic athletic meet, junior judging contests, horse shoe pitching tournament, horse racing and the annual fair parade complete with bands, live stock, 4-H clubs and floats.

Beautiful Garden

The Editor of the "Press" was privileged recently to visit several gardens about the town to be shown the beautiful flowers reared by hand work and perseverance of the owners.

There are many such gardens scattered in the various parts of the community, some small, some quite extensive, but all showing collections of most attractive flowers. Many of these gardens provide a real joy and satisfaction to those who care for them, but it is most unfortunate that the great mass of flower lovers, scarcely know of the grandeur in fragrance and color in other people's gardens.

Being partial to "glads", to the Editor, the appeal for magnificence, beauty and color was in the gardens of W. M. Cole on the Plains road, where in the extensive field some 560 varieties of "glads" were being grown, among them the new showing of Miss New Zealand, Coral Cluster, Gertrude Gray, Royal Pink and Nancy Hanks.

Recently photographs of this garden were taken in color but just now the season for blooms is passing. It is hoped that next season many will journey down and see for themselves this flower garden. Mr. Cole is a teacher in the New London (Conn.) High school and the raising of "glads" is his hobby during the summer which he and his wife spend in Northfield.

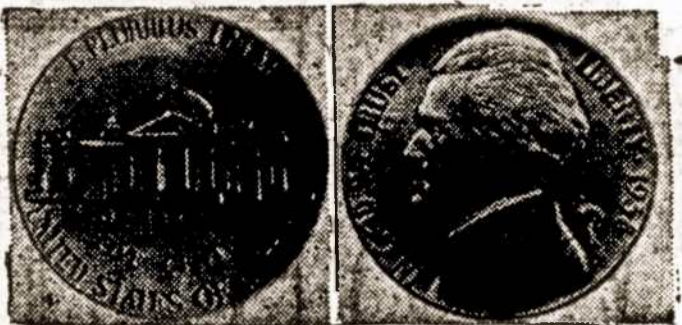

For Tourist Service

A. Gordon Moody, president of the Massachusetts Visitors association, attended a meeting of the executive board of that organization at the Wiggins Tavern at Northampton Tuesday evening. Observe Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Lazelle of Glenwood avenue observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary last Saturday and were "at home" to their friends during both the afternoon and evening. The house was appropriately decorated with beautiful flowers and greens, music was rendered by friends in the music room, while Mr. and Mrs. Lazelle received in the large parlor where over 150 friends extended felicitations and wishes for many more years of health and happiness. They were the recipients of many gifts and received many greetings through the mail. Intimate friends and relatives assisted in the reception and in the serving of refreshments. Guests recorded their visit in the autograph book and a glance at the register revealed many whose homes were far away, from many other states, from far away India. Their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Durgin with their family were present from far away Japan. Following the observance, Mr. and Mrs. Lazelle enjoyed a motor journey and vacation visit about the White Mountains.

Here is the new nickel, or five cent piece, which we shall soon see. This is the approved design of the Treasury Department which will replace the buffalo-Indian head in use for the past twenty-five years.

Finance Campaign Is Planned Locally For G.O.P. Purposes

A one hundred per cent volunteer solicitation is being planned among the Republicans of Northfield and its vicinity for funds to aid in the coming campaign of the Republican party in the state. The entire state has been divided into 42 areas and the campaign will be inaugurated on Friday, Sept. 23 to end Monday, Oct. 10. The local town G. O. P. committee at its recent meeting designated W. F. Hoehn as chairman of the Northfield finance committee and the appointment has been confirmed by the state committee of which Sinclair Weeks is chairman. Mr. Hoehn succeeds Ambert G. Moody who has held the post for many years. George W. Carr and Mrs. M. P. Stanley have been named vice-chairmen. The complete committee will be named shortly. Chairman Weeks in speaking on the need for funds has said:

"The day of political party angels is dead. Present conditions make a much harder job for the committees responsible for raising funds, but it is a healthy development for the growth of the party when all its members—and also its supporters outside the party—have an active share in meeting its needs."

"The immediate two-fold necessity confronting us is to get out the full Republican vote and to swing to our side the so-called independent vote in this state. This means organization and education. A successful campaign in both these directions involves certain inescapable expenses. The average contribution of each single individual means that the message is spread to at least nine others. Our goal is 100,000 votes which counts up to 1,000,000 votes—and Republican victory on Nov. 8."

The campaign will eliminate any over-lapping of solicitation, so that each individual will be approached only once for a contribution. The needs of the local, state and national committees will be met from the receipts of the one drive.

The opening gun of the drive will be fired on Thursday evening, Sept. 22, at a dinner of workers at Mechanics Building, Boston. Congressman Bruce Barton of New York will sound the keynote as principal speaker. Another feature will be the first appearance after the primaries of the newly nominated state ticket. It will be a "100 pennies a plate" affair, a figure at which the general public are invited to participate, if any of the 2300 places are not spoken for by the workers.

THE UNKNOWN SHEPHERD

Who is this faithful shepherd of the skies,

Who daily turns His fold upon the fields?

He lives in space and hears the cornered cries

Of lambs adrift at night. Fiercely He shields

His flock from harm. Gently He winds His way

Up and across far hills of hope, now high,

Now down in the sheds where each reclining day

Dreams of a dawn eternal, by and by.

Who is this Stranger whom we see each morn

Spreading His wings afar as a field of snow?

He has not let us go undreamed, unborn,

And, by our faith, He does not let us go

Each one alone, but like a drift of sheep

He folds us in one common crib one sleep.

—John Robert Quinn

YOUTH HOSTELER WAS KILLED WHEN BICYCLE CRASHED INTO AUTOMOBILE ON PACHAUG HILL LAST SUNDAY

Peter F. Scully, Jr., age 21, of Ossining, N. Y. died at the Farren Memorial hospital last Sunday afternoon, after receiving fatal injuries at eleven o'clock while riding a bicycle, enroute to Spofford Lake, with a group of three other hostelers.

Shortly before, they had left the local hostel on Main street, and going north, decided to pass through the Seminary campus, to view the buildings. Coming down the grade from Marquand hall, there is an abrupt turn northward as the road enters the main highway, Route 10, and here, Scully made a wide turn crashing into a southbound automobile, driven by Robert J. Betters of 3 Central street, Millers Falls. He struck the side door of the car, breaking off the handle, and re-bouncing against the stone at the right hand side of the road.

He was immediately picked up by Mr. Betters and with his companions rushed to the office of Dr. M. B. Molotchick at Millers Falls and to Farren hospital, where he died a few hours later of a fractured skull. Supervisor P. S. O'Donnell and State Trooper Frederick Sullivan made an investigation into the facts of the accident.

Scully with his companions, Robert M. Shute, Wilfred S. Rowe and Miss Grace Kidney all of Ossining, N. Y., and motored to Northfield to visit the Youth Hostel, and after spending the night there, hired bicycles for a trip to Spofford Lake. It was a sad ending to a Labor Day outing planned by the young people.

Have You Material? Old Documents Wanted

When Shay's Rebellion was in progress (1786-1787) Northfield was the headquarters of General William Shepherd who was attempting to put down the uprising. The Federal Writers' Project assumes that there must be some unpublished material pertaining to those troublous times here in Northfield, and is anxious to make contact with the owners of the documents. In case sufficient material is found available a book will be forthcoming on Shay's Rebellion in which Northfield will have a prominent part. This is an opportunity for the owners of old documents to have them included as "source material" for the book. For, as is well known, age in itself does not make a document valuable. A document has small chance of becoming a museum piece unless it has been quoted and its existence made known to people interested in such things. Anyone with documents of whatever nature, known to be of the period immediately following the Revolution will confer a favor on the Writers' Project by dropping a card to Robert H. Wilder, Northfield, who will be pleased to examine the material. There will be no charge for the service.

Calls A Meeting

The State Department of Public Works have announced a public hearing at the court house in Greenfield Thursday, Sept. 15 at 2:30, for the purpose of considering the requests of the various towns in relation to public roads in accordance with Chapter 81. Local selectmen will make known the needs of Northfield.

The Ladies' Benevolent society will hold a dance at Union hall Friday evening. Richotte's orchestra will furnish music.

YOUTH HAS ITS HEYDAY

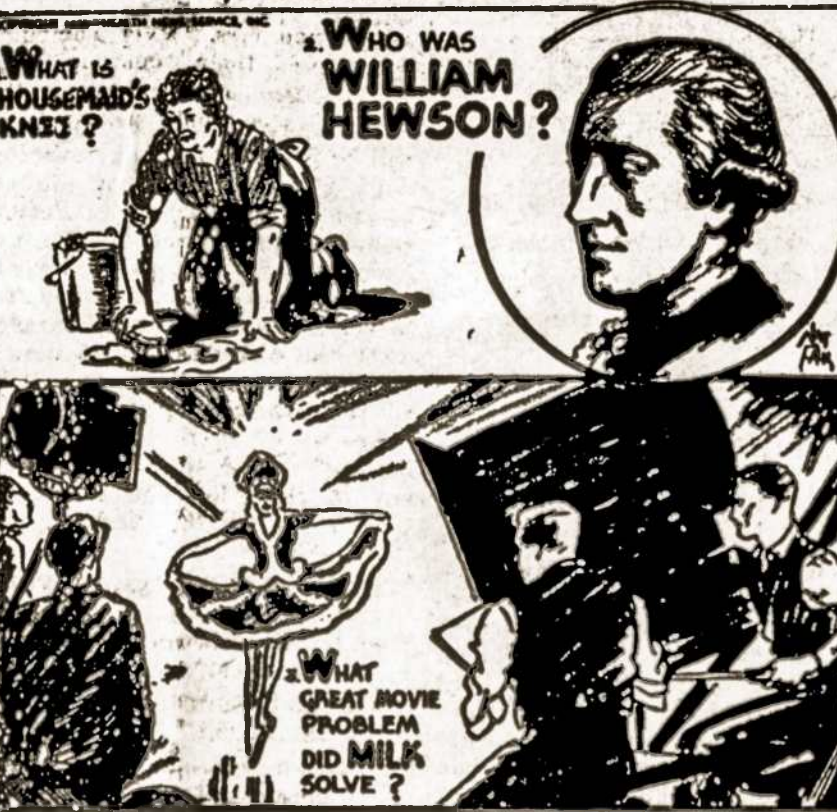

Youth has its heyday when the cymbals chime
And every road is bright with beckonings;
The morning rises on auroral wings
An eve descends as to a dancing rhyme.
Whate'er the season, seems the year at prime
With love of song and voice of riot strings Life is a capering jester, one who flings
His quips and laughter in the face of Time.

Youth has its heyday — such a shining page Unshadowed, lit by many a halcyon way.
Its birthright, its inalienable heritage Shall we not friend, whose locks are tinged with gray Forget in dreams the heavy hours of age
And tread again with youth the primrose way?

What Do You Know About Health?

By FISHER BROWN and NAT FALK

Answers:

1. Inflammation and swelling of the kneecap due to injury suffered by those who are down on their knees a great deal. Housewives are frequently afflicted with this disease — hence the name.

2. An 18th century English doctor who is known, in particular, for his important work on coagulation of the blood through his experiments, it is lotion (dusting) could be influenced by salts of various kinds. This discovery has aided doctors in making successful blood transfusions.

3. Filming ice scenes. Movie technicians have found that a thin surface of frozen milk entirely eliminates reflections of studio lights on the ice. Without its use, filming ice scenes would present an almost unsolvable photographic problem.

OUR HOUSE

It should be yours, if I could build
The quaint old dwelling I desire,
With books and pictures bravely filled
And chairs beside an open fire.
White paneled rooms with candles lit.

I lie awake to think of it!
A dial for the sunny hours,
A garden of old-fashioned flowers,
Say marigolds and lavender
And mignonette and feverfew,
And Judas-tree and maidenhair,
And candytuft and thyme and rue.

All these for you to wander in.
A Chinese carp (called mandarin)
Waving a sluggish silver fin Deep in the moat. So tame he comes

To lip your fingers offering crumbs.
Tall chimneys, like long listening ears,
White shutters, ivy green and thick,

And walls of ruddy Tudor brick,
Grown mellow with the passing years.
And windows with small leaded panes.

Broad window-seats for when it rains.
A big blue bowl of pot-pourri.
And—yes, a Spanish chestnut tree
To coin the Autumn's minted gold.

A Summer house for drinking tea.
All these (just think) for you and me.

A staircase of the old black wood,
Cut in the days of Robin Hood,
And banisters worn smooth as glass,
Down which your hand will lightly pass.

A piano with pale yellow keys,
For wistful twilight melodies.
And dusty bottles in a bin.
All these for you to revel in!

But when? Ah, well, until that time
We'll habit in this house of rhyme.

THE STATESMAN

The statesman throws his shoulders back and straightens out his tie,
And says, "My friends, unless it rains the weather will be dry."

And when this thought into our brains has percolated through,
We common people nod our heads and loudly cry, "How true!"

The statesman blows his massive nose and clears his august throat,
And says, "The ship will never sink so long as it's afloat."

Whereat we roll our solemn eyes, applaud with main and might,
And slap each other on the back,
the while we say, "He's right!"

The statesman waxes stern and warm, his drone becomes a roar
He yells, "I say to you, my friends that two and two make four!"
And thereupon our doubts dissolve
our fears are put to rout,
And we agree that here's a man who knows what he's about.

Cutting Criticism—Customer:
"Listen, barber. I'll never make the train at the speed you're shaving me. You hold the razor still and I'll waggle my face."

One of the briefer musical criticisms appeared in the local paper: "An amateur string quartet played Brahms here last evening. Brahms lost."

Male Straphanger: Madam, you are standing on my foot.

Female Ditto: Oh, I beg your pardon. I thought it belonged to the man sitting down.

"Oh, mamma, look!" cried the little girl on her visit to the country. "There's a duck! And it walks like it had just got out of a rumble seat!"

Waiter: "Sir, when you eat here you do not need to dust off the plate."

Customer: "Beg pardon, force of habit. I'm an umpire."

EDITORIAL

The increase use of the bicycle upon our highways is being given much consideration by authorities throughout the state, and more rigid safety regulations are being demanded by both pedestrians and motorists. Several cities in the Connecticut valley, led by Springfield, are adopting ordinances for their regulation and now comes Greenfield, through its Chief of Police, advocating some control.

It has been suggested that legislation be passed in the state to make uniform some rule that bicycles adhere to standard motor traffic regulation, be equipped with adequate brakes, steering apparatus, signaling devices and strong front and rear lights for night riding, warning horn or bell, and that travel be restricted to two bicycles riding abreast and immediately that they be registered.

That some regulation will soon be accomplished is hastened by the increasing number of cycling accidents. In this town where cycling is constantly on the increase, with its hazards, pedestrians, motorists, parents and others should lend their aid in urging all cyclists to exercise extreme care and meet every demand making for the safety of all.

Bicycles at night, without lights and sounding device, and even without brakes are a menace on the highway. They are a menace even during the daytime when traffic considerations are not realized.

One encouraging note of the week is that while it's pretty difficult to stir up much political fervor, business men are rolling up their sleeves and going out to create a better business condition. That's how business was created in the old days before we thought it could be fixed so easily by a grant from Washington. The Sales Make Jobs campaign is heartening. It is business men in action for their own sake, and for the sake of the community. To go out after business in such a manner is the best cure for the blues and for depressions this country ever has known.

The Back Yard Gardener

Pop Miller was certainly hoping when I met him the other day. His garden activities had been sadly interrupted by some poison plant or other.

He insisted that there was no poison ivy on the premises but I find on checking up that ivy is only one of a dozen plants in the northeast which might cause poisoning. Poison ivy, poison oak, and poison sumac are the most common ones, sumac being the most serious of these three.

Some folks are affected by cow parsnip, the old-fashioned stinging nettle, some of the lady's slippers, meadow buttercup, certain varieties of the hop vine, cultivated primrose (Primula obconica), snow-on-mountain, wild parsnip, motherwort, ragweed, and even the innocent appearing lily-of-the-valley. And of course, there are occasional cases of poisoning by other plants on certain individuals.

I was also quite surprised at the number of plants that are poisonous when we eat them. Of course some of them are used for medicine, but when we take them in their natural state, well—they just don't agree with us: Indian tobacco (in fact all of plants of this family have a poisonous effect), Jamestown weed or Jimson-weed, the meadow buttercup again, pokeweed, the roots of wild iris, also the roots of smaller iris, hemp, the fruits of the red and white haneberry, the root and juice of the may apple all parts of the poison hemlock, and the fool's parsley.

Add to these the fruits of the various kinds of the deadly and the bitter night shade, all parts of the hellebore, the fruits of the holly and the American mistletoe, corn cockle, and the fruits of the black alder. Most of those are wild but even among the cultivated plants we find some that just don't agree with us: monkshood, poppies, oleander, belladonna, and foxglove.

And then there's another group which we ordinarily think of as being poisonous to livestock. They also are harmful to humans if taken internally. Field horsetail, larkspur (or, as some folks refer to them, delphiniums), wild lupine, wild black cherry, water hemlock, cheep and mountain laurel, cultivated castor oil plant, and arrowgrass.

And of course when it comes to fungi, well, I just steer clear of them entirely.

Of course, Pop was feeling a bit uneasy or itchy as it were, and I don't blame him. Personally, I never experienced poisoning of this sort, but I am keeping my fingers crossed. I told him that as far as I can discover there are any number of prescribed remedies for skin poisoning. However, most of them coincide on one or two points.

One is never to scratch or rub the spots. Two, wash thoroughly with lots of good soap and running water or change the water frequently. Use as hot water as you can take. Be sure that you wash the poison off the body and not just spread it around. Three, apply a cooling application of some sort like cooking soda or Epsom salts. And don't keep the spots covered or bandaged over night.

Poisoning inside—of course, the best thing is to call a physician in your own case and a horse doctor in the case of livestock. While the physician is burning up the road between his house and yours of course the best thing to do is to get the person to vomit.

And then if you want to get rid of those weeds such as ivy and all the others, I suggest that you get a hold of a little leaflet I have. It is KILLING WEEDS WITH CHEMICALS, and you can get it by writing to the Mailing Room at the State College in Amherst.

LIFE

We meet and we part; the world is wide;
We journey onward side by side
A little way, and then again
Our paths diverge; a little pain,
A silent yearning of the heart
For what hath grown of life a part,
A feeling so somewhat bereft;
A closer grasp on what is left,
A shadow passing o'er the sun
Then gone, and light again has come.

We meet and part, and then forget
And life holds blessings for us yet.
